Course description: An Introduction to Trauma Informed Care

Many foster parents keep hearing about trauma informed care (TIC) and are left wondering what it means. This training will do more than help foster parents understand the meaning of TIC, it also will offer concrete suggestions for how foster parents can implement TIC in their work with the children and families they serve. The training introduces foster parents to the seven essential ingredients, St. Aemilian-Lakeside's version of TIC, and engages foster parents in thoroughly understanding each ingredient and talks about steps they can take to improve the behaviors they see from the kids in their care.

Presenter: Tim Grove, MSSW, is the chief program officer at Integrated Family Services, St. Aemilian-Lakeside's child welfare subsidiary. Previously, he worked at St. Aemilian-Lakeside for more than 10 years in a variety of administrative positions within in-home services, treatment foster care, residential treatment, and quality improvement. He was responsible for the implementation of St. Aemilian-Lakeside's trauma informed care philosophy and practices, including developing the trauma informed care training curriculum and the "seven essential ingredients" definition of how best to understand and implement trauma informed care.
